Bert's Bootery
When Bert Horn opened his shoe store a few years ago at 3433 South State street "wise ones" predicted that the venture wouldn't last six months for the reason that the stock carried was too high class for the neighborhood. Bert had the South Side agency for the Florsheim shoe, unquestionably the best, smartest, looking, most comfortable and modestly priced piece of footwear on the market, and he was firm in the belief that if an outlying store carried the same line of high grade goods as could be found in exclusive Loop stores the business would stay in the neighborhood. The tremendous success he has made proves his judgment was sound. Now when South Siders think of footwear they naturally think of Bert's Bootery, the South Side home of the Florsheim shoe.—Advertisement.
