BLIB. Manuscripts in the British Library, London, listed by Or number. For a handlist of works of the Báb see Chapter 25 of https://archive.org/details/descriptivelisto00brituoft/page/n3. Regarding manuscripts in the series Or16590 through Or15740, which together comprise half of all known works of Bahá'u'lláh, including some 4,000 items which are uniquely accessible in this series: These were the bequest of a descendent of the family of Bahá'u'lláh; were mostly transcribed by Mírzá Muḥammad-'Alí, and are likely to have been derived in part from the two stolen satchels of Bahá'u'lláh's papers mentioned in GPB p.249 and MMK4#189 p.276. While included here owing to their importance, their degree of fidelity to the originals has not yet been ascertained.

COLOR SCHEME FOR SUBJECT CLASSIFICATION

The color scheme was inspired by a verse of the Qur'an referenced in the Four Valleys: "We will show them Our signs in the world and within themselves, until it become plain to them that it is the Truth (al-Haqq)." Accordingly, the 19 super-categories were arranged around a color wheel roughly recapitulating the arcs of descent and ascent (running counter-clockwise). Super-categories relating to the True One (al-Haqq) are in shades of purple, those relating to the world in shades of green, those relating to the human soul in shades of blue, and those relating to the Manifestation in red, while those denoting aspects of religion and historical contingency are in brown trending towards orange and yellow. Thus by glancing at the colors in an inventory entry one may arrive at a rough idea of its general theme.
